The Way to Deal with Oyster-Pirates-The Borth Carolina Militia-Other Notes.

Special telegram to the Dispatch.) RALEGUE, N. C., July 2.—Governor Scales has received the following letter from Governor Lee, of Virginia, in response to a letter in regard to depredations by Virginia oystermen upon North Carolina's public oyster-grounds:

"In regard to received, our Virginia waters."

In order to protect our Virginia waters from the depredations of Maryland and other foreign oysiermen, as well as to carry out among our own citizens our laws bearing among our own citizens our laws bearing upon such subjects, we keep constantly employed one steamer and one gunboat and two saling vessels. I do not see any way that I can keep Virginia vessels in Virginia waters, but I do hope you will have their crews arrested and tried by your laws when caught depredating in the waters of your State. It North Carolina possesses no overe State. If North Carolina possesses no syster pasy could you not temporarily organize one and two gunboats and capture the of-fenders and thereby make an example of them? Perhaps such action would have the effect of preventing future depredations.

TIPTIETH CONGRESS.

Washington, July 2, 1888.

Nenate.

There were exactly eight senators present this morning when the session opened, (at 11 A. M.)

The conference report on the legislative appropriation bill was presented and concurred in.

Senate bill explanatory of the act to settle certain accounts between the United States and Mississippi and other States was reported from the Committee on Public Lands and placed on the calendar. House joint resolution extending the States of Florida and Jonathan and Line and L and Louisians, and joint resolution of the 14th of May, 1888, relating to the disposal of public lands in certain states, was reported from the same committee and passed, with an amendment continuing it in force until the adjournment of the present Congress, instead of until the adjournment of the present session, Mr. Plumb, who had charge of it, stating that Congress would undoubtedly adjourn within a few weeks.

After some time devoted to the District of Columbia business the Senate took up the river and harbor bill, some amendments to river and harbor bill, some amendments to which had been reserved on Saturday for separate votes. The demand for a separate vote on the Hennepio-canal amendment was withdrawn by Mr. Vest on the suggestion that the question might be left to a conference committee (but subsequently a motion to reconsider was made by Mr. Sherman). In the course of the discussion Mr. Hoar vehemently denounced the criticism and abuse so generally induiged in by some seniors and by newspapers in relation to the ators and by newspapers in relation to the river and harbor bills. He had got sick, he said, of hearing scenators trying to blacken the character of their own associates in pubthe character of their own associates in public life by charging that river and harbor bills were made up of miserable bargains, log-rotlings, and cheating. He had taken the most villified river and harbor bill ever before the public, had gone over it item by item, with the reports of engineers and such other facts as he could get, and had written

a letter to his constituents defending the bill.
A newspaper which had joined in these attacks, and which he was ashamed to say got its indexement from some senators, emattacks, and which he was subamed to say got its indorsement from some senstors, em-ployed one of the ablest men on its editorial staff to answer his letter, and to attack him on the record; and this writer, after exam-ring all the documents, reported to his prin-ciple that Mr. Hoar was entirely right, and he would not write the article. It was a vie-wander on the representatives of the Ameri-can records to declare that, these river and barbor bills, to any considerable extent, to say appreciable extent, to any extent amounting to 5 per cent, contained provisions that were not thoroughly delensible, or that were not demanded by the interests of international or intersate commerce. If this bill contained improper items in any considerable numbers, the Senator from Maine (Frye), with character as unsuited as any man who walked on the continent, was unfit for his place in the Senate as chalrman of the Committee on Commerce, either by reason of want of canacity or by reason of want of integrity. There was no alternative.

NEW YORK, July 2.—The stock market opened the new week without change in its character, being still intensely dull, with flactuations confined to the narrowest limits and of little or no significance. Dealings were almost entirely professional, and outside of those in the Union Pacific developed no feature worthy of mention. There was a hopeful feeting in Union Pacific upon the announcement that Speaker Carliste would not oppose the calling up of the funding bill, and some improvement was made in the price of the stock, but the filbustering operations of the opponents of the bill disheartened holders of stock and a material decline tollowed. Northern Pacific and Oregon stocks were strong on very limited business on the recent good showing of earnings. Total sales, 71,000 shares.
